The Malay Bisons.

His Highness the Sultan of Pahang, in the Malay Peninsula, can claim to have introduced a decidedly novel feature into Oriental sport since he has just brought his great bison kral to a successful issue. The bison of the Malay Peninsula, called s'ladaog by the Malays, corresponds almost exactly with the Indian gaur, but it has never been decided by naturalists whether it is the true gaur or not, as it is seldom shot or caught, and the few trophies existing are imperfect, and do not afford conclusive evidence. They are magnificent beasts, of great size, but shy in the extreme, and excessively fierce; they usually go about in he-Is of from half a dozen to a score, sometimes singly, and occasionally in couples, in the steep, densely wooded hills, and rarely issuing from their seclusion except at night.

The Sultan, who usually resides at Pekan, the capital of Pahang, removed to Pulau Tawar in the end of February, accompanied by about 1,000 men, and immediately set them to work to erect a strong fence along the edge of the river, so as to enclose the entire promontory, except that part in connection with the mainland which was left undisturbed until the herd was found and to have entered of their own accord, which they were expected to do about the end of April. However, there was consternation and confusion in the camp when at daybreak on April 6 it was discovered that a large herd of bisons had found their way on to the promontory during the night, and still remained there. Only about a mile of the barricade had been completed, and there remained another mile and a half to be done before the beasts could be surrounded.

The whole force of men, which had been steadily increasing in numbers, and now amounted to over 1,500, were immediately put on to complete the fence, which they succeeded in doing by nightfall, to the surprise of every one, including themselves.
The bison were now safe inside. In one corner of the kral, some fifty yards from the river, and well above it, a smaller enclosure about twenty yards square was constructed, and into this after considerable difficulty, the entire herd, numbering twenty-four head, was driven.

Terrified by the noise of the beaters, and wild with fear, the great creatures appeared almost mad, and rushed about attacking each other with indescribable fury. They continued to charge and fight like demons, amid the yells and cheers of the excited crowd, until at nightfall ten of the noble beasts lay dead or dying. Two more succumbed during the night, and it was a pitiable sight next morning to see the twelve survivors all laded and gory—utterly exhausted, but still vigorous and "game." Four of the slain—two bulls and two cows—measured eighteen hands and over in height at the dorsal ridge. One huge bull, the largest of all who is still living, must measure eighteen hands three inches. Large covered bamboo rafts were constructed, and some of the bisons have been driven on board these and sent down to Pekan, a distance of 150 miles; the others will follow in due course. At the time of writing a large cow and two smaller ones are at Pekan. The large cow, which was presented to the Resident, has been generously offered to the Singapore Museum, and is now being skinned and prepared prior to being set up there. Another is now on its way to Singapore alive. The large cow measures 18 hands 1 inch at the dorsal ridge and 16 hands 3 inches in height at the shoulder. It is to be hoped that the bison will now be identified, so as to definitely settle the vexed question as to whether the Malay bison and Indian gaur are the same species. Two tigers were caught in the kral, but both made their escape; several deer and pigs, however, were successfully captured. It was intended to send one or two of the live bisons to England, if possible, as one has never been seen there. However there is but little chance of their either living in captivity or standing the voyage.
This is believed to be the first large bison kral on record.—London Field.
